BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

Veterans Urged to Hold on to Bonus Bonds; Pay 3 Pct.

Face Value of Bonds Will Increase Every Year After First One

BEST INVESTMENT

Retaining of Bonds by Men Will Ease Government's Borrowing

By HERBERT PLUMMER Associated Press Correspondent

WASHINGTON.—The federal government in making cash payment of the bonus this summer, intends to proceed on the theory that all war veterans are honest men.

These in charge of the machinery now being set up in the postoffice department virtually have decided to omit final formalities such as taking veterans' fingerprints.

As explained by one high government official, every effort will be made to simplify the procedure. When it is considered that treasury officials estimate if the bonus bonds to be issued were laid end to end they would reach from New York to London and then still go on almost to Moscow, the tremendous amount of routine involved in their handling is easily understood.

Wants Vets to Keep Bonds

There's an element of psychology in the decision of the government to remove as much red tape as possible in the issuance of bonus bonds which may be traded for cash.

Everything possible is being done to persuade the veterans to retain their bonds as long as possible. If treasury officials could figure out even approximately what would be done with this bonus money a lot of their troubles would be removed.

Fiscal experts, however, are up against something entirely new in trying to make such estimates. Relief needs, consumer demand and a host of other influences enter into the question.

It's a vastly different proposition from that presented in government offerings to banks and business men. A fraction of an advance in the interest rate on government securities will cause almost a stampede among those with money to lend. March offerings, for example, were greatly oversubscribed although the interest yield is less than 2 1/2 per cent.

The bonus bonds always will be worth their face value, and if held, will be worth more after the first year because they bear interest at the rate of 3 per cent annually until June 15, 1945.

Bonus Affects Borrowings

The treasury is concerned over the amount of bonus money to be spent immediately after payment because plans must be made in the next few months for further financing.

In addition to providing funds for paying the bonus, demands for continuance of work relief shortly will begin to drain the treasury.

Some bond men estimate the government must borrow $500,000,000 in the next few months, although others are of the opinion that because many of the veterans in the words of Secretary Morgenthau, will tuck their bonds in the strongbox for the "sake of their wives and children," such heavy borrowing will not be necessary.

Anti-Tuberculosis Program Outlined

Mrs. George Dodds, County Chairman, Announces L. R. Meet

Mrs. Geo. Dodds, chairman of the tuberculosis committee in Hempstead county, is in receipt of the program of the annual meeting of the Arkansas Tuberculosis Association which will be held in the auditorium of the new Medical School at Little Rock, April 28, as a section of the Arkansas Council of Social Work.

Because the National Tuberculosis Association is meeting in New Orleans on April 22 the Arkansas Association has been able to procure the services of a distinguished group of speakers who will have been in attendance on that meeting. Dr. James J. Waring, president of the National Association, and Dr. J. A. Myers who is internationally known for his book on tuberculosis among children will be the outstanding attractions. Dr. H. R. Townsend, Clinical Director of Oakville Sanatorium at Memphis, will lead the discussion of Dr. Myers' talk.

Other visitors will be Miss Fannie B. Shaw, Health Education Adviser National Tuberculosis Association and Miss Allene Warren, a native of Arkansas who was formerly executive secretary of the Miller-Bowie Association and the Craighead County Association in this state and now is executive secretary of the Tuberculosis League of Sussex County, New Jersey. Other speakers will be Dr. W. B. Grayson, State Health Officer, in health phases of the Social Security program. Dr. H. A. Browne of McRae Sanatorium on racial differences in tuberculosis, and Dr. D. T. Hyatt who will lead the discussion of Dr. Waring's paper on physical examination in the diagnosis of pulmonary disease.

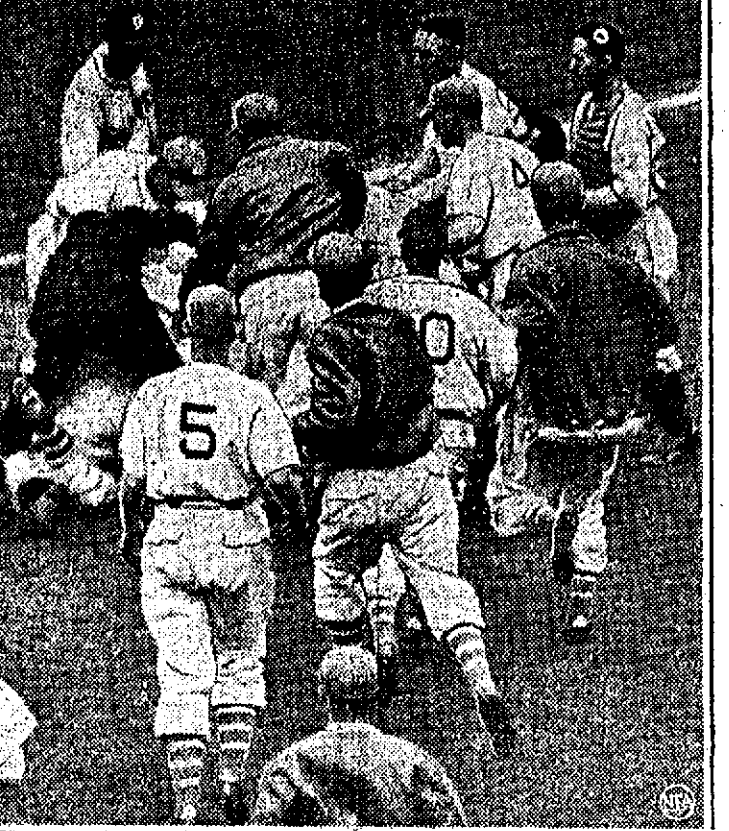

Miss Mattie Neely, Assistant State Supervising Nurse, will lead the discussion of Miss Warren's paper on tuberculosis problems in the county nurses' program and Miss Zona Ellen Smith, Director of Physical Education for Women, Arkansas State Teachers College, will discuss Miss Shaw's talk on the school health education program.

WILL ANNOUNCE PLANS

DALLAS, Texas.—(AP)—Tom Hunter, Wichita Falls oil man, and candidate for governor in 1932 and 1934, said here Friday he would announce Sunday his intentions in this year's campaign.

Mr. Hunter spent the morning conferring with friends. He was accompanied by Boyd Gattwood, newspaper man.

As Mungo and Bartell Battled

The Giants-Dodgers feud broke into the open again at the Polo Grounds when Dick Bartell, New York shortstop, and Van Mungo, Brooklyn pitcher, came to blows after Bartell had hit toward first base. Umpires, managers and team mates are pictured trying to untangle the belligerents. A bean-bat tossed by Mungo set off the fireworks.

Turkey Occupies the Dardanelles

Another of the World War Treaties Is Thrown Into Discard

ISTANBUL, Turkey.—(AP)—Turkey, joining other nations violating post-war treaties, Friday sent troops to strategic positions in the demilitarized zone around the Dardanelles.

(Turkey recently sent notes to European powers asking permission to fortify the area, forbidden by the Lausanne treaty.)

Soldiers moved into the demilitarized zone at dawn, following a decision reached Thursday at a meeting of the Turkish cabinet, at which President Kemal Ataturk presided. Marshal Fezi Pasha, chief of the army general staff, also attended the cabinet session.

The orders to enter the Dardanelles area were delivered secretly, and the army went in without any public announcement. Word of the occupation was disclosed Friday night.

French and British Reach Agreement

Sanctions Not to Be Discussed Until After French Elections

GENEVA, Switzerland.—(AP)—French League of Nations circles declared Saturday that Great Britain and France have composed their differences on suggestions for settlement of the Italo-Ethiopian war.

Under the present agreement the two nations have decided that the question of sanctions will not be discussed until after the French elections.

Probe "Sentinels" Political Group

DuPont, Sloan and Morgan Partner Aid Anti-New-Dealers

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—The senate lobby committee Friday disclosed that a group of well-known opponents of the New Deal was backing the Sentinels of the Republic financially or was otherwise interested in that organization's activities.

Treace du Pont of Delaware, Alfred P. Sloan, president of General Motors, E. T. Slossbury, a partner of J. P. Morgan & Co., and Raymond Pitcairn, Philadelphia industrialist, were shown to have contributed to the Sentinels.

Names of Alfred E. Smith, John J. Raskob, Col. Robert R. McCormick, publisher of the Chicago Tribune, Col. Henry Breckenridge, Democratic opponent of Roosevelt for the Democratic presidential nomination, William Randolph Hearst, publisher, and Gov. Eugene Talmadge of Georgia were said to have shown interest in the organization.

It developed that the Sentinels had been interested primarily in fighting the proposed child labor amendments to the Constitution but of late had combated the Social Security law; the Guffey Coal Act, and income tax publicity measures.

It has attacked the Roosevelt administration in motion pictures described as "a novel adaptation of the art of political caricature to the screen" and entitled the "Fire Brigade." President Roosevelt is one of the characters depicted.

3 Held in Solution of the Kidnaping of W. A. Hamm, Jr.

"G" Chief Hoover Asserts It Was Barker-Karpis Gang Job

"SOLVED AT LAST"

Believed Members of Same Gang That Kidnaped Edward Bremer

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—J. Edgar Hoover announced Saturday the arrest of three men in connection with the kidnaping of William A. Hamm, Jr., St. Paul brewer.

"I think we've solved the Hamm kidnaping at last," he told reporters.

The director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation said the kidnaping involved "the same gang" as the kidnaping of Edward Bremer, in which the Barker-Karpis gangsters were implicated.

Those arrested were named as: Charles J. Fitzgerald, Jack Pfeiffer, and Edward C. Bathomey, postmaster at Bensonville, Ill.

Luciano to Face Trial on May 4

New York Gangster One of 11 Held in Manhattan Vice Raids

NEW YORK.—(AP)—Forty-eight policemen and detectives took charge of Charles (Lucky) Luciano, pictured by police as king of the city's racketeers, when he arrived from Arkansas Saturday to face charges of compulsory prostitution.

The return of Luciano, under indictment by an extraordinary grand jury sitting on racketeering cases, was punctuated by a wide-spread drive on New York crime by Thomas E. Dewey, special prosecutor.

Luciano Is Returned

NEW YORK.—(AP)—The office of Thomas E. Dewey, special racket prosecutor, said Friday night he will ask $500,000 bail for Charles (Lucky) Luciano after he rushes Luciano before a judge in supreme court Saturday to answer four indictments of compulsory prostitution.

Police will take the man Dewey described as "America's No. 1 racketeer" directly from a train bringing Luciano from Little Rock, Ark., and send him through the early morning line-up.

Luciano was taken from Little Rock under heavy guard Friday night after authorities had decided his legal rights to seek appeal from an ordered extradition had expired.

More New Yorker detectives will board the train at Albany and Poughkeepsie to aid three detectives now guarding Luciano in a statement. A special police guard will greet the prisoner on his arrival early Saturday.

For Governor

Carl E. Bailey to Run for Governor

Waives Second Term in Present Office to Enter New Fight

BAILEY STATEMENT

Meanwhile, Pope Bids for Attorney General's Office

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—The announcement Friday night by Attorney General Carl E. Bailey for governor was followed Saturday by the entry of Walter L. Pope into the state ticket lists for the post of attorney general.

Mr. Pope, a resident of Little Rock, was formerly assistant attorney general and special counsel for the state in the handling of highway audit litigation and bond refunding.

As the state's political pot started to boil, Earl Mizell, of Corning, Saturday morning filed his corrupt practices pledge for state land commissioner; and a few minutes later, State Land Commissioner George W. Neal filed his pledge for secretary of state.

Fertilizer Is Put Down on Elm Trees

Present $145 Fund Exhausted—Committee Needs Remaining $155

Placing of fertilizer on the 235 Centennial elm trees recently planted either side of Hope on the right-of-way of highway No. 67 is under way.

Contract for the hauling and placing of the fertilizer was made by Roy Anderson in behalf of the civic committee which is handling the memorial project.

One bushel-basketful of fertilizer is going down at the base of each tree, and a large lip is being dug in the earth at each base to hold the maximum amount of water. City firemen are watering the trees at regular intervals as a precaution against the unusually dry spring this year.

Mr. Anderson announced that with payment of the fertilizer, contract practically all present funds in the tree project are exhausted. Total donations to date are $145, donated as follows: City of Hope $50; Hope Star $50; American Legion $5; Legion Auxiliary $5; United Daughter of Confederacy $5; Young Business Men's association $10.

As the total estimated cost of the project is $300, here is a balance of $155 still to be raised from the remaining civic organizations of Hope. The committee in charge of funds, Sid Bundy, J. K. Sale and Fred Gray, is contemplating making a person-to-person canvass to raise the last $155.

Philippines Open Land to Settlers

22,230 Acres Made Available to Island Homesteaders

MANILA.—(AP)—Acting under a new homesteading law, President Manuel Quezon of the Philippine commonwealth has opened two reservations embracing 22,230 acres in Lanao and Davao to settlement.

Poor people in the cities are being urged to take up homesteads in this rich farming belt.

Another program has been started in Mindanao where $500,000 is being spent on roads and bridges so as to open up other lands.

The department of public works is handling the bridges and roads while the department of labor is trying to persuade city dwellers to become pioneer farmers.

Your Baby's Health

By DR. MORRIS FISHER
Editor Journal of the American Medical Association, and Hygeia, the Health Magazine

A woman who is going to have a child must eat only for herself, but also for the baby.

The child depends on its mother for its food supply, which comes to the baby through the blood vessels which connect it to the mother.

The food substances going to the baby are, for the most part, governed by the food the mother takes. If her food supply lacks substances that the child requires, these substances will be extracted from the mother's tissues and organs to her considerable detriment.

There used to be an idea that a mother had to lose a tooth for every child that came to her. It was a well-established fact that the mother's teeth would become loose and decay during that period previous to childbirth.

Now we know that, if the mother eats enough calcium and phosphorus and gets enough vitamin D during this period, her tissues need not be compelled to give up these elements to supply the child.

This does not mean, of course, that she ought to overeat. Overeating would throw an excess burden on her digestive organs and certainly her body is not in any condition to undergo excess of any kind.

There is some slight increase of weight of the mother, which is normal during this period, but any abnormal increase in weight will have a bad effect. At the same time, the prospective mother need not think that she can keep down the weight of the baby by starving herself. The baby's weight is not dependent entirely on the amount of food its mother eats.

All food during this period should be well chewed to aid digestion, exactly as it should be well chewed at any other time. Indeed, a good general rule for the prospective mother is to eat the same foods that she usually eats, but to make certain that she gets plenty of milk, and more fresh fruits and vegetables than she would take ordinarily.

She should watch particularly her supply of vitamins and such salts as calcium, phosphorus, iron, and iodine. She ought to have eight to 10 glasses of water a day, unless her amount of fluid are restricted by her doctor for some special reason.

The necessary proteins will be supplied by meat, eggs, milk, and such vegetables as peas and beans. The fats are important, particularly butter, cream, and cheese, because they provide vitamin A. The carbohydrates and starches, including bread, potatoes, and cereals, are needed to provide calories which take care of the mother's demands for extra energy.

Besides getting a rich supply of vitamins A, B, and C from fresh vegetables and fruits, particularly citrus fruits and tomatoes, the prospective mother may require extra cod liver oil, halibut liver oil, or perhaps viosterol, as prescribed by her doctor, to be certain of vitamin D.

A Book a Day

By Bruce Catton

The longhorn steer may have vanished from the western plains, and the cattle business may be less breezy and romantic than it used to be; but a new kind of livestock is being developed these days, and it is helping to keep alive the spirit and traditions of the Old West.

This new kind of livestock is made up of eastern dudes. The dude ranch, where innocents from the East may make the acquaintance of cow ponies, 16-gallon hats, chaps, and such-like, is becoming a thriving industry; and there is an interesting discussion of it in "Dude Ranches and Ponies," by Lawrence B. Smith (Coward-McCann, $3.75).

Mr. Smith remarks that people were complaining 60 years ago that the West wasn't what it used to be, and he suspects that maybe it never was; but the glory of the open western country is still unchanged, the wily pony is as good a horse as ever, and the cowboy himself—though he may ride herd on dudes rather than on half-trained steers—is still a citizen worth knowing.

So Mr. Smith undertakes to tell what the dude ranch is like; to explain the details of western horsemanship and equipment; to advise the dude how to behave while on the ranch; to list the ranches available; and to outline the sort of recreation a tenderfoot is apt to get in the cow country.

His book is highly attractive—too much so for the peace of mind of a sedentary book reviewer, who has nev-

Your Children

By Olive Roberts Barton

Children react to the attitude which adults adopt toward them. If parents are kind, happy, considerate, more than likely the small boys and girls who depend upon them, will be so, too. If parents are cross, unreasonable and irritable, the children are apt to be that way. They can't help this natural response any more than a flower can keep from blooming in a fertile, watered soil while it droops in a parched one.

Two small children, each with his mother, sat at a table in a tea-room the other day. The little boys were about five.

One grabbed at a menu. He couldn't read, but he made demands in a loud voice: "Do they have ice cream? I want some. Chocolate. And I want some mashed potatoes and some gelatin and—"

He leaned all over the table and upset his glass of water and screamed because he got his suit wet.

On Other Side of Table
The other little boy waited while his mother read the menu to him. When she finished he said: "I think I'd like some creamed chicken. Mother, and some floating island for dessert. Will you have it, too? You said we would have the same dessert."

"Of course we'll have the same dessert," his mother agreed. "And I think I'd like some creamed shrimp instead of chicken. They are almost the same, too."

"Don't want anybody else to have what I have to eat," the first child came back. "Nobody else can have ice cream. I won't let them!"

"Peter, shut up! You're a bad spoiled, selfish little boy. Now you keep still," his mother reprimanded him. Then she looked at the menu. "Oh dear, they never have anything to eat at this place. I don't know why we chose it. I want some oysters and I don't see them on the menu."

Irritation Versus Satisfaction
The waitress suggested several other delicacies but she shook her head. "I wanted oysters!"

"And I want ice cream!" her son ordered.

"We'll go some place else and meet you later," the unsatisfied woman said, then, and taking her child by the hand, departed.

"We don't like your food!" her gentle son called back to the waitress.

When they had gone, the second little boy looked at his mother. "But it's good food," he said. "This is awfully good chicken."

"And this is mighty nice shrimp," his mother agreed.

A great deal could be said about the point of view which parents give their small sons and daughters. Mothers and fathers can't be too careful of the atmosphere with which they surround their children during the formative years.

TOBY RYAN, 19, is a photographic model, posing for photographs to be used in advertisements. Unknown at first, she is chosen as "The Hillyer Soap Girl."

Toby shares an apartment with HILLYER HOLM, another model, engaged to MARY CLYDE SABIN, whom Toby distrusts.

Wealthy TOM JAMIESON shows Toby with attention for a time and then seems to forget her. Toby's oldest friend is BILL BRANDT, advertising salesman. She is fond of Bill but has never thought of him romantically.

JAY HILLYER, president of the Hillyer Soap Company, sees Toby posing for some photographs. He takes her to dinner and later she has frequent engagements with him.

Clyde Sabin marries a wealthy widow, and Hillyer, heart-broken, attempts suicide. She recovers and later goes to the country for a rest.

Tom Jamieson becomes attentive again. Toby goes to dinner with Hillyer who says he has a "particular reason" for inviting her. When she asks what the reason is, he seems embarrassed and says, "It's a long story. I don't know quite how to begin."

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XXXIV

THE dinner had ended and they sat with coffee before them. Hillyer took the cigarette from his lips and rested it on a tray.

"It's a long story," he repeated, "and it starts before you were born, Toby. More than 20 years ago. It's about a boy who grew up in a little New England town. A place where nothing very important ever happened—unless you count the most important thing of all, men and women living useful, hard-working lives, raising families and teaching their children to be conscientious and honest and unselfish. Have you ever been in New England, Toby?"

"No, I never have."

"Then there's no use of my mentioning the name of this town or telling you where it is. That isn't important any way. But this boy was born there, and he grew up about like most boys. Not much better or worse. He went to grade school and had the measles and chicken pox, and belonged to a gang that used to have battles with another gang. He went swimming in the summer and ice-skating in the winter."

"When he was older his parents sent him to prep school and then to college. He wasn't particularly interested in his studies, but he was out for football and managed to make the team and stay eligible. Football was about the only thing he really was interested in. He'd never paid much attention to girls at home and he didn't in college, either."

"The summer he was 19 the boy's father decided he should go to work. So, instead of going off for the usual trip to the seashore with his parents, he stayed at home and got a job driving the delivery wagon for a laundry."

"It was the most wonderful summer in his life—"

MARY'S visit came to an end and she went back to the older sister, with whom she made her home. They'd kept the marriage a secret—but after a while it came out. The boy's parents declared he had ruined his entire future. There were terrible arguments, scenes, harsh words spoken in anger. The parents, no doubt, were right—from their viewpoint—but the boy was right, too. He couldn't make them see this. The law, parental authority, everything was against him. He was packed off to Europe for six months."

"But did he go?" Toby asked.

"Yes, he did. He went to Europe. He was there for six months. He came back a different person. He was more mature, more thoughtful. He had seen the world, and he had seen the things that people do in other parts of the world. He was a different person when he came back."

"And he didn't try to find him?" Toby asked.

"He couldn't. Toby. Within a year Mary was dead."

Hillyer paused again. "That," he continued, "was 19 years ago. A long time, isn't it? Mary died when her baby was born."

15% Girl Students Also Holding Jobs

Average for All Students at Northwestern University Is 35%

EVANSTON, Ill.—(AP)—A survey just completed by the Northwestern university's employment bureau shows that 221 or 15 per cent of the women students hold part time jobs.

Of all the 3,759 undergraduates 1,246 men and women, or 33 per cent of the student body, are partially self supporting. The survey shows that during the first semester of the current school year, students earned a total of $67,203. Men students averaged $162 and women $92.

Hollywood

By Paul Harrison

HOLLYWOOD.—The indorsement business amounts to quite a nice little sideline for movie stars, and many keep them in cigars, shoes, automobiles, toothpaste, or whatever products they choose to approve.

Several get good cash money in addition to free samples and the publicity afforded by publication of their pictures. More than a few skeptics would guess actually use the products they indorse. Popularity is a fragile thing, and they have to be pretty careful.

Western stars, for example, do not indorse cigars. One horse-opener hero appeared in a tobacco advertisement and received a great many disapproving letters from Parent-Teacher associations. For several months his pictures actually were dropped from some of the preferred lists compiled by local censors.

Unfavorable propositions are rejected by the stars. One company wanted Jean Harlow to stand next to a ventilating fan and allow her skirt to be blown this way and that—mostly up. It would have made quite an interesting picture. Miss Harlow said, "No, thanks."

Mao West Declines
Makers of women's nether finery and foundation are forever after Mae West's indorsement. She always declines, figuring that this would be the most illusion-shattering publicity possible.

One manufacturer wants to sell corsets bearing her autograph. Can you imagine Klondike Annie posing in a corset? Oh, well—don't try it.

They say that Greta Garbo was asked to indorse a garbage can, to have been called the "Greater Garbo Garbage-can," or something like that. That was probably the first time the wan Swede decided that she wanted to go home.

Shirley Obliges
Shirley Temple is Hollywood's champion indorser. Manufacturers pay her an aggregate sum of about $1000 a week for her sponsorship and royalties on sales. Her name appears on 12 different articles—glasses, paper dolls, cut-out books, real dolls, soap, hair ribbons, story books, coats, hats, drinking glasses, underwear, and handbags.

But Shirley's advisers have declined many an offer. Their loudest "no" went to a French manufacturer of fancy cigars. He wanted to include her name in a list of stars who preferred his brand.

$100,000 Spurned!
A good many lesser notors and actresses are inveterate chasers who continually are seeking chances to make indorsements. It's nice work when they can get it.

About the only toponotcher who consistently refused to make indorsements during her entire film career was Mary Pickford. She reckons that she must have passed up more than a million dollars of easy money. She's doing a bit of indorsing now, on the radio.

When You're Bored
The next time you go to a movie, give a thought to these figures: The film is traveling through the projection machine at the rate of 90 feet a minute. There are 16 frames, or individual pictures, to each foot of film. Twenty-four of these frames flash on the screen each second—1440 a minute. If it's a good feature with big-name stars, each of those fleeting flashes costs at least $5 to film, any may have cost $10 or more. The average feature film is well over a mile in length.

The Alamo
You dream through all the days,
gray Alamo,
Your face beamed and seemed like some old man
Left tranquilly slumber in the sun:
Your baptism of blood, so long ago,
A crimson rose within your patio.
Reveries, frail queen-crown vines have sealed and won Your court yard wall: the years have stilled your gun,
Immortal now in memory's folio
The jangling clamor of the crowded street
Is lost within the silence you know,
There is the sense of those unseen who told
Of sword-drawn line to cross, and no retreat,
High courage shines, dim phantom candles glow,
And inwardly one hears your evening bell.
—Dorothy Calloway.

I am indebted to a friend for a centennial edition of the San Antonio Express, just filled with interesting things about the Alamo, where 100 years ago on March 6 Col. William B. Travis' heroic little band were holding back General Antonio Lopez de Santa Anna and his army. Travis' band lacked ammunition, rations and clothing but they fought on with unflinching courage; resolved not to yield to the tyrant who had shifted his political allegiance three times within 15 days. But these brave defenders were overwhelmed; Travis' fell beside a gun, Bowie was slain on a rude cot, and Crockett was killed fighting to the end, and the last defender was shot within the chapel. The fearless men who held the Alamo are honored everywhere, the tyrant who ordered that they be given no quarter is almost forgotten, far enlightened

Revival Opens at Hope Tabernacle

Rev. and Mrs. H. A. Chaney, Oklahoma, to Be Here Several Weeks

Evangelist and Mrs. H. A. Chaney of Oklahoma City will open a series of special meetings at Hope Gospel

Tabernacle, North Main street, Sunday morning at the 11 o'clock service, at which time Rev. Chaney will deliver the sermon.
Mrs. Chaney is an experienced children's and young people's worker and will speak in the regular night services during the campaign, being a competent and talented evangelist. The Chaneyes come to Hope directly from a series of successful meetings in Oklahoma and are slated to be at the Gospel Tabernacle for two or three weeks.
Special attention will be given to the Sunday school during this series of meetings by the evangelists.
Special music and singing will feature the meetings each evening in addition to the rousing congregational singing.
The public is invited to attend these services.

It generally has been conceded that Mr. Bailey could run for a second term unopposed, and his decision to seek the governor's office may have drastic effects upon others' political intentions. Most of those mentioned as potential candidates for governor are lawyers and it is believed likely that some of them now will consider seriously the possibility of succeeding
Mr. Bailey as attorney general.
Mr. Bailey is 41, married and the father of five sons and a daughter.

Eddie Cantor at Saenger Sunday

"Strike Me Pink" Shown at 8 p. m. Monday and Tuesday

Eddie Cantor in "Strike Me Pink," the pop-eyed comedian's sixth annual musical extravaganza, comes Sunday, Monday and Tuesday to the Saenger; and, on account of the program's length, the picture's schedule is as follows: Sunday at 2:15 and 9 p. m.; Monday, night at 8 p. m.; Tuesday at 2:30 and the last show, at night at 8.
This lavish million-and-a-half dollar production, featuring Ethel Merman, Sally Eilers, Parkyakarkus and William Frawley and a glorious new array of Goldwyn Girls, casts Eddie as a timid little college tailor whose secret passion for a glamorous night club singer, in the person of Miss Merman, moves him to take a correspondence course in personal magnetism, entitled
"Man or Mouse, What Are You?"
Then he inherits the management of a huge amusement park and becomes involved with a gang of slot machine racketeers who have put every previous manager on the spot.
"Strike Me Pink" was based on Clarence Budington Kelland's Saturday Evening Post story and novel,
"Dreamland."
Harold Arlen and Lew Brown are responsible for the snappy song hits, which include, "The Lady Dances,"
"First You Have Me High, Then You Have Me Low," "The Calabash Pipe" and
"Shake It Off."
Robert Alton staged the dances and ensembles, and Gregg Toland photographed the dance numbers. Omar Kiam designed the costumes, and Richard Day created the sets.
Highlights of the musical are a thrilling, laugh-loaded comedy chase on a Giant Roller Coaster and a wild balloon ascent, with Eddie and Parkyakarkus in the basket and the gangsters at the controls.

THIS CURIOUS WORLD

The WATER OUZEL

IS A BIRD OF THE ROCKY MOUNTAIN REGION, WHOSE HABITS OF LIVING ARE UNPARALLELED IN THE BIRD WORLD! ALTHOUGH IT BELONGS TO THE THRUSH FAMILY, IT DIVES FOR INSECTS IN THE FOAMING TORRENTS OF WATERFALLS, AND NESTS IN THE BLOWING SPRAY.

FREQUENTLY THE NEST IS PLACED IN SUCH A MANNER THAT THE BIRD MUST PASS THROUGH A FALLING SHEET OF WATER, ON EACH TRIP TO AND FROM THE NEST.

THE NEST IS CONSTRUCTED ALMOST ENTIRELY OF MOSSES, WHICH ARE KEPT GREEN AND GROWING BY THE CONSTANT SPRAY.

IN SUMMER, THE OUZEL FEEDS BENEATH THE ROARING CASCADE WATERS.

WHEN WINTER COMES, AND THE STREAMS ARE FROZEN, THE BIRD FLIES TO OPEN WATER IN THE LARGER MOUNTAIN LAKES, AND DIVES BELOW THE ICY SURFACE TO FEED ON THE BOTTOM.

IN FORM, IT BEARS A STRIKING RESEMBLANCE TO A LARGE WREN.

HELLO THERE, SONNY! HOW WOULD YOU LIKE TO EARN FIFTY CENTS, REAL EASY?

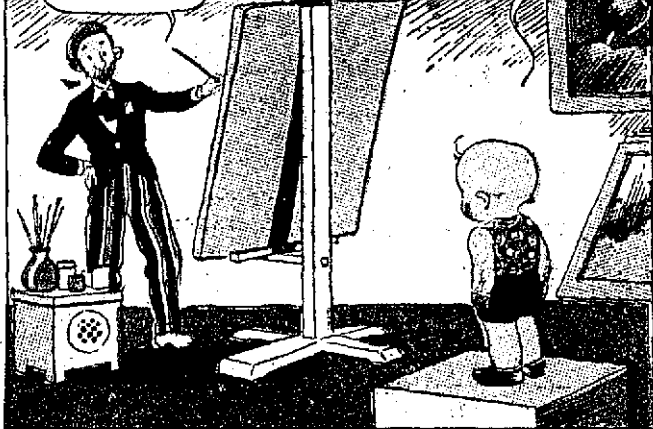

SWELL!! HOW?

JUST BY STANDING STILL... YOU SEE, I'M AN ARTIST, AND I WANT YOU TO POSE FOR ME - DO YOU THINK YOU CAN HOLD VERY STILL FOR AN HOUR?

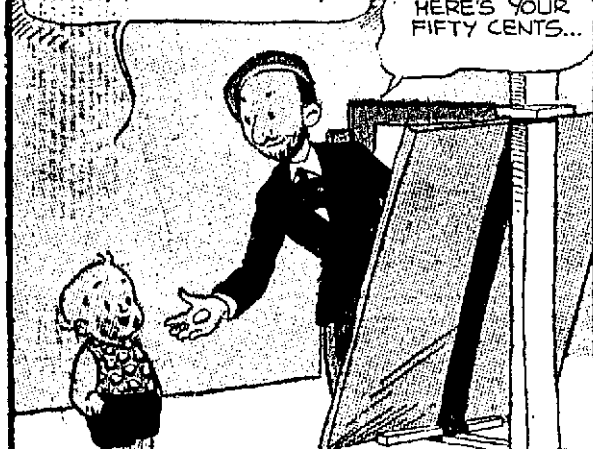

MISTER, FOR FIFTY CENTS I'M A LIVING STATUE!

WHERE DID YOU GET YOUR FACE SO DIRTY?

DOWN BY THE RAIL-ROAD TRACKS

YOU'RE THROUGH ALREADY, EH? GEE, YOU WORK FAST!

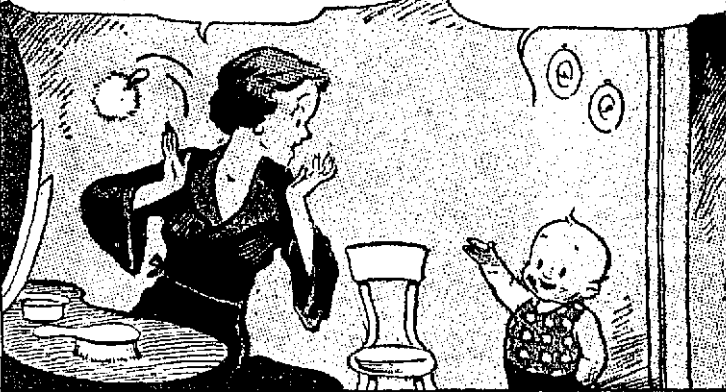

YEP, HERE'S YOUR FIFTY CENTS...

FIFTY CENTS, FOUR BITS, OR A HALFA ROCK BOY, IT'LL SURPRISE MOM WHEN SHE FINDS OUT I'VE EARNED ALL THIS SUGAR!

GOOD HEAVENS, HERKY, WHERE ON EARTH DID YOU GET SO DIRTY? NOW, HURRY AND TAKE A BATH - I WANT YOU TO WALK UP TOWN WITH ME ...

LOOK, MOM - A FELLOW JUST PAINTED MY PICTURE, AND HE GAVE ME FIFTY CENTS!!

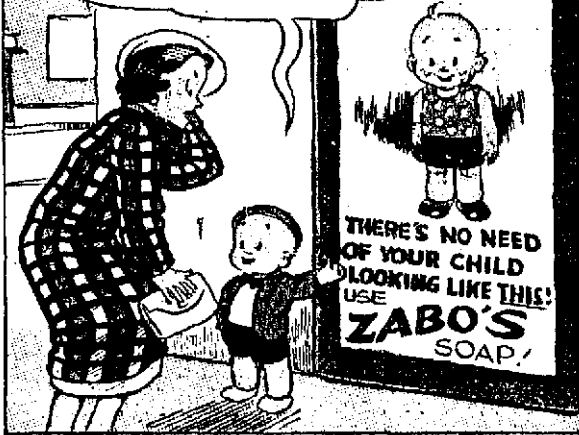

I CAN'T IMAGINE WHY EVERYONE'S LAUGHING AT US WHEN THEY GO BY - IS YOUR SHIRT TAIL OUT?

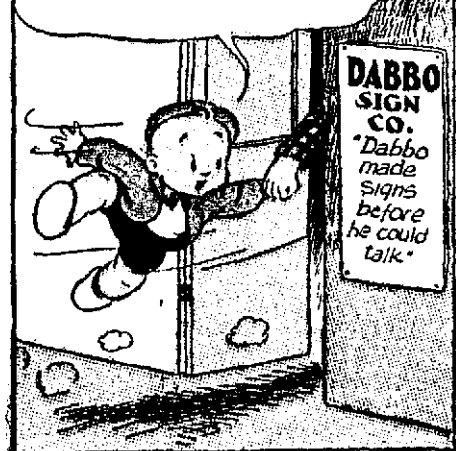

WHY, HELLO, HERKY - I SEE YOU'RE USING ZABO'S SOAP, NOW ... HA HA HA

OH-LOOK, MOM! THERE'S THE PICTURE THAT FELLOW PAINTED OF ME - ISN'T IT A KNOCKOUT?

HERKY, DID YOU SAY THAT ARTIST WORKED HERE?

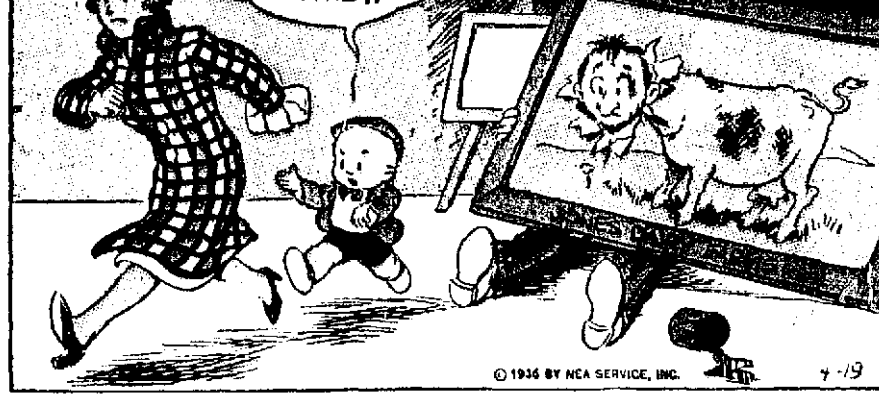

DABBO SIGN CO.
"Dabbo made signs before he could talk."

YOU SNAKE-IN-THE-GRASS!

AW, GEE, MOM, NOW WHY TH' HECK DID YOU WANTA DO THAT TO A SWELL GUY? HE GAVE ME FIFTY CENTS!!
